

Questions and Answers – Emergency Management Consulting Services

Q. We just wanted to touch base with you to see if IEM was still the contractor of preference for this type of consulting (reference attachment) or if you were looking for another contractor based on dissatisfaction with the services that IEM has been providing to the state.

A. To the best of my knowledge, there has never been a contractor of preference. IEM was not awarded the contract last year. This was based solely on the competitive bid process as required by Alabama law. We welcome proposals from any company that meets the qualifications required in the Request For Proposal and each will be fairly evaluated.